

The Bolegg Gallery - the Aviary System for the North American Producer

The advantages of aviary systems are increasingly being examined in North American markets, but until now no one has managed to create a system that successfully meets the very precise needs and regulations required for North American producers. Basically, there hasn't been an aviary system designed specifically for you.

With more than 20 years of experience in the United States and Canada, Vencomatic North America knows exactly what our customers have been asking for -- we know what will meet the needs of today's producers, and where the most likely developments will arise in the future. Which is why we were involved from the very beginning in the concept and design of the new Bolegg Gallery aviary system from Vencomatic.

Our sales manager in the U.S., Aaron Willey, explains it very well.

"The Gallery answers the questions and criticism cage-free systems have endured with a perfect combination of ease of management while maintaining the Vencomatic way of keeping birds in a welfare-friendly system and delivering the cleanest eggs, as we always have. We really have the best 1-2 punch that I know of on the market to produce cage-free eggs with the Bolegg Gallery aviary system."

And don't be mistaken, the Gallery isn't simply an enriched cage, built to meet the most basic requirements. It is a true aviary, with animal welfare taken into full account, while still offering the highest density of birds compared to any other true aviary on the market.

Not only does the Gallery maintain excellent animal welfare conditions, it's also easy to manage with a winchable back wall for nest inspections, and the tip flooring, Vencomats and Vencobelts ensuring the best quality eggs post-lay, all of which you already expect from Vencomatic.

Introducing... Michael Bultitude!

Many of you know our Technical Services Manager Cale Bergen, and while sometimes he certainly seems like a one-man problem solver, he is in fact backed by a team of Equipment Specialists who help him deliver timely, accurate quotes on barn layouts for Vencomatic, Prinzen and Agrilamp products.

One of the newest additions to that team is Michael Bultitude. Prior to joining the Vencomatic team, Michael worked for Canadian Pacific Railway as a conductor, which took him all over the country. It was only after he returned to school for Engineering Technology that he discovered he would be happy to remain in the Calgary area and join Vencomatic.

While it's been a considerable change in situation, Michael is enjoying his time as Equipment Specialist.

"The laid back atmosphere and great people make it easy to come to work. When you know that everyone supports each other in whatever way that they can, it is the definition of a team environment."

We are happy to have Michael working in the Calgary office, ensuring our team is as helpful and efficient as possible.

2015 Summer Vencomatic North America Sales Meeting

Over a few sunny days in July, the entire Vencomatic NA team met up outside of Calgary, Alberta in Canada for three days of intense review and assessment of almost every facet of the company. What came from these meetings were more streamlined processes that will improve the way we provide service to all of our customers. Every Vencomatic NA employee is committed to making sure our customers have the best experience and the best equipment for their operation - from the smallest to the largest.
